☞ APPRENTICES LIBRARY.—We are informed that about 500 volumes are already promised to this Library and Bible Class.

☞ THE MAIL AGAIN!—We received no papers from any place east of Harrisburg, this morning.

☞ The Banks in this city will, as usual, be closed on New Year's Day.

We publish, to day, another letter from the correspondent of the New York American, descriptive of the vicinity of Pittsburgh.—Our citizens will be pleased, generally, with this description of our surrounding country. Although there are a few inaccuracies in it, yet it is certainly more correct than any previous account by a hasty and casual visitor. The intelligent and accomplished correspondent happily seized upon some of the prominent features of our scenery, and presented them beautifully and distinctly to his friends in New York.—Readers of this letter, at a distance, should bear in mind that its writer saw Pittsburgh and the surrounding scenery in the gloomy month of November—and that it is in the summer that our lovely environs are to be seen to advantage.

From the New York American.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK.

We commence our Review, to day, as we propose to do hereafter, with one of the excellent letters of our traveling correspondent H. His last, described Braddock's field: the present one spreads tangibly before the eye, Pittsburgh, and all its prosperous industry.

No. VIII.

PITTSBURGH, NOV. 8.

There is no place in the Western country, as Judge Baldwin observed, in his address before the Mechanics' Institution of Pittsburgh, "which can more justly boast of its small beginnings, its rapid but solid growth, and its future greatness," than this. It is about seventy years since General Washington, then a young fellow of two and twenty, was despatched by Governor Dinwiddie, of Virginia, to the French commander on Le Bœuf, (near Erie,) to demand that he should desist from aggression upon the British frontier. The young officer, upon his return down the Allegheny, upon a raft made with tomahawks, was wrecked with a single Indian attendant, upon an island near the present city of Pittsburgh. The situation of the point of land formed by "the forks of the Ohio," at once caught his military eye; and crossing on the ice in the morning, he examined the position with sufficient minuteness to impress his commander with its importance. The spot was soon after taken possession of by a small colonial force, which in 1754 was easily dispersed by the formidable descent of the French under Contrecœur.—He came with a thousand men at his back, and floated various munitions of war, among which were eighteen pieces of cannon, in three hundred and sixty canoes, down the Allegheny. The blow was struck which commenced the old French war, that lost France all her possessions east of the Mississippi. Contrecœur entrenched himself upon the spot, and the bloody annals of Fort Du Quesne received their first notoriety from this bold invader.

Thirty years afterwards, the place now become known as Fort Pitt, began to assume commercial importance, from the Indian fur trade then carried on with vigor from this point. An increase of population ensued, the extensive coal beds in the vicinity began to be appreciated; they indicated the prodigious manufacturing resources of the rising town of Pittsburgh. The adjacent country became rapidly populated, and it was soon the agricultural depot for the rich region on this side of the Alleghanies. The genius of Fulton matured at once the rising fortunes of Pittsburgh and gave her a market for her overflowing productions.

Situated two thousand miles from New Orleans, by the aid of steam she supplies the whole of the intermediate region with hardware, machinery, and cutlery.* But it is not for this manufacture alone, that Pittsburgh, though often called the "Birmingham of America," is celebrated. Her extensive Glassworks are well known even beyond the Alleghanies, and this fragile production of her workshops, finds its way alike to the borders of Lake Erie, and of the Atlantic, and may be met in the elegant mansions of Baltimore and the remote shantees of the Arkansaw.

The timber trade, is another great feature in the business relations of Pittsburgh; the boards and scantling measured within the city, in 1830, amounted to more than five millions of feet; of this, a great deal was floated down the branches of the Alleghany river, from the south western counties of New York. The romantic hills of Chatauque county, supply not a few of the stately trunks which, after being hewn into shape at Pittsburgh, subsequently float the products of northern industry, through many a stranger climate to the rich markets of Louisiana. You will not wonder, therefore, that the freight exported from Pittsburgh, in 1830, amounted to upwards of 18,000 tons, its imports for the same year being more than 14,000 tons. The city is now, with the adjacent village of Alleghany town, and Lawrenceville, on the Alleghany, and Birmingham, and Manchester, on the Monongahela, the third town in population, wealth, and importance, in the Mississippi valley. Next to its admirable situation, the flourishing condition of the place, is no doubt to be mainly attributed to the inexhaustible quantities of fine bituminous coal, which may be had for the digging, in all the adjacent hills. Pittsburgh is, however, indebted to the character of her early settlers for her present eminence; they were chiefly mechanics, enterprizing, industrious, practical minded men; the improvements they commenced, were based upon utility, and every path of trade they struck out, led to some immediate and tangible good. The result shows itself, in one of the most substantial, and flourishing, but least elegant cities on the continent. The site of the town, I have already described to you as one of the most beautiful that can be imagined! The fault is to be attributed entirely to the manner in which it is laid out, for the streets, though by no means wide, are well and substantially built upon with brick; and a species of yellow free stone, found in the vicinity, is coming into use, which, for elegance as a building material, is not surpassed by marble itself. The great defect in the town, is the total want of public squares, and, indeed, of an agreeable promenade of any kind; this is the most remarkable, I might almost say provoking, as Pittsburgh boasts of one spot, which, if converted into a public place, would, from the view it commands, be unrivalled by any thing of the kind in the Union, unless it be the Battery of New York. I allude to a triangular piece of ground, at the confluence of the two rivers, at the end of the town. It is the site of the Old Forts, and commands the first view of the Ohio, and the finest of its waters I have yet seen; the prospect I have described to you in a former letter. Had but the ancient fortifications been preserved, this would have been one of the most interesting spots upon the Continent; of Fort Du Quesne, there remains now but a small mound, containing, perhaps, a couple of loads of earth; Fort Pitt may be more easily traced; part of three bastions, about breast high, stand within different private enclosures, and a piece of the curtain, which, within a few years, was in complete preservation, may still be discovered among the piles of lumber, in a steam saw mill yard. The commandant's quarters, a steep roofed brick dwelling, in the form of a pentagon, is, however, the only perfect remnant of these old military structures. I expected to have seen the magazine of the Fort, which I was told was an admirable piece of masonry, and still endured in the shape of a Porter Cellar, but, upon arriving at the spot where it had stood but a few weeks before, a pile of rough stones was all that we could discover. In a country like ours, where so few antiquities meet the eye, it is melancholy to see those interesting remnants thus destroyed, and the very land marks where they stood, effaced for ever. Occasionally, too, the works of which every vestige is thus painfully obliterated, were, especially when erected by the French, of a peculiarly striking character. The French engineers, who first introduced the art of fortification into this country, were of the school of Vauban, and the enduring monuments they raised were not less noble proofs of their skill, than were the sites selected, of their high military discernment.

There is yet another place in Pittsburgh, which, at some future day, should be appropriated as a public square; a triangular bluff, about one hundred feet high, stretches, like a huge promontory, far into the town, and overlooks the whole place. The Pittsburghers, however, I fear are more bent upon increasing their "father's store," than in beautifying the favored spot in which they dwell, and it requires all the cordial hospitality of the place, to reconcile a stranger to the few city improvements he sees going forward, in a community so pre-eminent for its individual enterprize. I wish we could lend them our "improving" corporation for a few weeks, they would be really of service here, and could easily be spared at home; they might, too, learn more than one thing of the Pittsburghers, and especially how to supply the city with pure water; we have it here in the greatest abundance. The water is pumped up from the Alleghany, by a steam engine, into a large, open basin, situated on an eminence known as Grant's Hill, from the signal defeat of that rash, but gallant officer at its base, during the old French war.—From this ample reservoir, pipes conduct the fluid to every part of the city. A large Gothic Cathedral is now about to be erected, near the water works.

You remember Grant's fight, as described by Hall, in his beautiful Western Sketches. Grant bivouacked beneath the hill, now called after him, and ordering his reveille to beat at dawn; the French and Indians charged upon him to the sound of his own trumpets and cut his troops to pieces. His force, I believe, consisted chiefly of Highlanders. The skeleton of a young officer, with gold in his pocket, and marks of rank about his person, was turned up in a field not far distant, a few years since. A western poet, of whose existence I first became aware through a file of the Pittsburgh Gazette, has commemorated the incident in some verses, among which are the following simple lines:

"One Highland officer that bloody day
Retreated up the Alleghany's side,
Wounded and faint, he missed his tangled way,
And near its waters laid him down and died.

'Twas in a furrow of a sandy swell
Which overlooks the clear and pebbled wave,
Shrouded in leaves, none found him where he fell,
And mouldering nature gave the youth a grave.

Last year a plough passed o'er the quiet spot,
And brought to light frail vestiges of him,
Whose unknown fate perhaps is not forgot,
And fills with horror yet a sister's dream."

On the side of the hill is a place, still pointed out as 'Grant's grave.' I know not why it should be thus designated, however; for I believe that the worthy Colonel, who afterwards served in the British army during the Revolution, never returned to lay his bones in a spot where the spirits of his rashly sacrificed soldiers might have made him uneasy in his grave. There is a more authentic tomb on the western bank of the Alleghany: it is the last resting place of an Indian, who, as tradition avers, seeing "Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt," shot himself for love! Poor fellow! he must have been serious! for, as Hudibras saith,

"He that hangs and beats out brains,
The devil's in him if he feigns."

The walks and rides in the environs of Pittsburgh, are rendered interesting by a variety of objects, besides the fine scenery through which they lead. A description of the Pennsylvania Canal, which flows on an aqueduct over the Alleghany, and passing through a tunnel of a few yards in length, locks into the Monongahela, on the opposite side of the city, would furnish you with no newer ideas than a description of any other canal. The Nunnery, which is also one of the lions of the neighborhood, I have not hitherto had an opportunity to visit, and "Braddock's Field" you have already in a letter by itself; so having now a tolerable idea of the town, with its compact brick dwellings, dingy with coal smoke; its natural wharves, where the Ohio rises 25 feet; its gravely banks, lined with steam boats and river craft, and bustling with business operations upon the most extensive scale, you must follow me in my ride of this morning along the Monongahela.

The fog and coal smoke together, rendered the atmosphere so thick, even after crossing the bridge over the river to a straggling village opposite, that I verily believe it was only the dazzling sparkle of a pair of queen like eyes, marshaling me through the gloom, that enabled me to ascend the opposite height with safety. Leaving the rest of the party far behind, I followed their beautiful and high spirited owner up a winding path, where our horses, after sinking to their fetlocks in the sand, would slip half a pace backward at every step, and gainted at last an elevation near five hundred feet above the level of the river, where, to my surprize, instead of a sudden descent upon the opposite side, the eminence continued rising in a succession of fertile fields, until the last green slope was terminated by a distant wood. We rode along the edge of the precipice for a mile or two, and, from the state of the atmosphere, on the side towards the town, you can conceive nothing more singular than the effect of the scene below. Imagine yourself standing on Weehawk height, with your own city brought immediately beneath your feet, the whole landscape bright and clear above, and a cloud so impervious below, that not an object can be discerned at five yards' distance. The gulf seems unfathomable. The hoarse jar of machinery comes upon the ear like the groans of a nether world; and the lurid flame, which ever and anon shoots from some furnace athwart the gloom, shows like the penal element itself. But now the noon day sun has pierced into that murky glen—the fog begins to rise—a gilded spire glances here and there in the broad sunshine, and some tall headland stands greenly out from the silver veil that wraps its base; the banner from yonder arsenal floats gaily forth in the warm air; and, as the flaky mist rolls more rapidly up the river, begins to stream upon the freshening breeze. The rivers themselves can now be traced far away, with many a dewy island stealing out one by one, upon their bosoms. Beneath, a bustling city seems as if it had sprung at once to life, while the quiet farm houses slowly appear upon the sleeping fields beyond.

This single view is worth a journey to Pittsburgh.

I took an opportunity, while a lady of the party stopped to visit a pensioner in a cottage by the road side, to examine a coal pit, just beneath the brow of the hill. Dismounting, on a small platform, some two hundred feet above the river, from which a railway empties the coal into the coke kilns upon its bank, and the freight boats upon the shore, I entered an aperture in the rock, about six feet in height, and four in breadth. A guide preceded me with a candle, and after penetrating under his escort a few hundred yards, I turned aside to explore some of the adjacent shafts; they lie like the streets of one main avenue; the veins of a grand artery, which, after winding through the body of the hill, finds its way again to the light, a half a mile distant. In one of these cavernous passages, in a ledge of the rock, lay a sleeping man, the water, trickling from the black walls around, was the only sound to disturb his slumbers; a long wicked candle stuck in a crevice, above his head, shining over thickly matted locks and features, begrimmed with coal dust, revealed a figure of gigantic mould. The mattock, on which his ponderous arm reposed, told that it was only a miner at his noonday nap, but he might have been mistaken, by one coming suddenly upon his singular place of repose, for a slumbering Titan, who, though pent within such narrow confines, might yet shake the mountain piled upon him to its base.

Our rout now, after leading still farther along the height, commanding, at every step, some new view of the town, and the adjacent country, with the three rivers seaming its bosom, struck at last into a fine wood, and then descending suddenly into a romantic dell, we followed a small stream, which soon led us back to the Ohio. Here again might be traced a display of French taste, which, when the fabric was entire, must have been exceedingly beautiful. It was the remains of a mill dam, constructed by the officers of Fort Du Quesne, according to the most approved rule of the time, like a perfect fortification; a part of the curtain, with traces of some of the bastions, yet reward the eye of the curious. At the mouth of the glen we paused to look at a salt factory, and then crossing a bridge over the brook, we passed by a steel factory, and several coke kilns, along the base of the cliff, from the summit of which I had so much admired the scene below, an hour ago.

The embouchure of the Monongahela was at hand, and stepping aboard of a small horse boat at the point, where it loses itself in the Ohio, I soon terminated, on the opposite side, one of the most delightful rides I can recollect ever to have taken.

TWENTY THIRD CONGRESS.

FIRST SESSION.

Monday, December 23.—In the Senate, Mr. Rives presented the memorial of the citizens of Wheeling against the monopoly of the Louisville and Portland canal stock, by a company, and praying Congress to purchase the same for the Government; which was referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

Mr. Wilkins presented several memorials from the citizens of Western Pennsylvania, praying the Government to give their assistance to the construction of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, a subject concerning which, he said, that the whole people of the West were about to rise in mass.—The memorials were referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

Mr. Clay presented the petition of the inhabitants of Pittsburgh, praying that Congress would purchase the stock of the Louisville and Portland Canal; which was referred to the Committee on Roads and Canals.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The Chair then called the special order, viz: The bill to provide further for the collection of the duties on imports.

Mr. Calhoun then rose and moved to postpone the consideration of the bill until Monday, the 6th of January, and to make it the special order for that day.

Mr. Forsyth said he understood that it was the intention of the Senator from South Carolina to press this bill through the Senate without going through a committee. In that case, it was his wish that the Senator from South Carolina would lay before the Senate a copy of the ordinance of the State of South Carolina, relating to the bill before the Senate.

Mr. Calhoun replied that he had not the document.

The motion to postpone was then agreed to.

PUBLIC DEPOSITS.

The chair having called the second special order, being the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the subject of the Public Deposits—

Mr. Clay rose and expressed his regret that he was under the necessity of asking a postponement of a subject on which the unexampled pressure upon the pecuniary interests of the country, rendered prompt action and early decision so important. He had made a call, last week, for some papers, which he considered to be indispensable; and he had hoped that the information asked for then, and under a previous call, would have been furnished before to day, especially as the documents had been commented on by the Secretary of the Treasury, and must, therefore, be in his possession. The information, however, had not yet reached the Senate, although the road, from the Department to the Capitol, had been so much improved. Regarding the correspondence of Mr. Crawford as necessary to a full elucidation of the subject, he was compelled to make a further postponement.

Mr. Forsyth said a few words in reply, stating that he thought the Senator from Kentucky would find all he required in the printed documents, and adverting to the great space covered by the call, as an excuse for the delay in furnishing the information.

Mr. Clay stated that he had looked through a great deal of the correspondence which was printed, without finding any passages to bear out the constructions of the Secretary. On the contrary, he had found much bearing a totally opposite construction; and he thought it but fair that the Secretary should have an opportunity to communicate the letters to which he had referred. He wished to proceed to morrow, or Christmas day, if the information should be furnished; but as the Senate would not sit on Christmas day, he would fix on the day after Christmas.

The order to postpone until Thursday was then agreed to.

In the House of Representatives, on motion of Mr. Stewart, it was

Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means be instructed to enquire into the expediency of authorizing the application of a part of the annual appropriation, under the act of 1824, for surveys, &c., to geological investigations, and to the formation of a geological map of the United States.

THE REMOVAL OF THE DEPOSITS.

The House having resumed the consideration of the question of reference of the Report of the Secretary of the Treasury on the removal of the Public Deposits from the Bank of the U. States, with Mr. M'Duffie's motion to instruct that Committee to report a bill for restoring the Deposits to the said Bank—

Mr. M'Duffie resumed the Speech which he began on Thursday last, in support of his motion.

The U. S. Bank, when it took its charter, paid the government a bonus of $1,500,000 for the use of its money twenty years. At the expiration of seventeen years, the Deposits are wrested from it. The Bank, having maintained its fidelity to the government, to the expressed satisfaction of Congress, will have a claim on it for some $200,000 which cannot be easily avoided. Verily, the Kitchen Cabinet should pay the damages out of the Commissions they are to receive from the pet banks for getting them the Deposits.—Nat. Ægis.

THE MOTHER'S INJUNCTION,

ON PRESENTING HER SON WITH A BIBLE.

Remember, love, who gave thee this,
When other days shall come,
When she who had thy earliest kiss,
Sleeps in her narrow home.
Remember, 'twas a mother gave
The gift to one she'd die to save.

That mother sought a plege of love,
The holiest, for her son;
And from the gifts of God above,
She chose a goodly one.
She chose, for her beloved boy,
The source of light, and life, and joy—

And bade him keep the gift—that, when
The parting hour would come,
They might have hope to meet again,
In an eternal home.
She said his faith in that would be
Sweet incense to her memory.

And should the scoffer, in his pride,
Laugh that fond faith to scorn,
And bid him cast the pledge aside,
That he from youth had borne;
She bid him pause, and ask his breast,
If he, or she, had loved him best?

A parent's blessing on her son
Goes with this holy thing;
The heart that would retain the one
Must to the other cling.
Remember! 'tis no idle toy—
A mother's gift!—Remember, boy!

ALEX. LAUGHLIN.
Pittsburgh, Dec. 27, 1833.—tf

The Grand Inquest that now is enquiring in and for the county of Allegheny, at October session, A. D. 1833,

RESPECTFULLY PRESENTS—

THAT they have taken into deep and serious consideration the request of the court at the commencement of the present sessions—That some enquiry should be made into the frightful increase of crime in this county, indicated by the criminal calendar at the present term. And the result at which they have arrived, after a careful examination of the evidence, in the very many cases that came before them, is, that nine tenths of the crime has been produced by the abuse of ardent spirits; and they doubt not but the same deep and appalling conviction will force itself on the mind of every man, before the present term. The conviction of a growing evil of this magnitude, which draws within its vortex people of all classes and situations, ages and sexes, in life, is a subject that should at once arrest the attention of every christian, philanthropist, and patriot. It would seem that notwithstanding all that has been said and done to stay the progress of this leprosy, that its march is still onward, and that it threatens to peril the property, the liberty, nay the lives of us all. They think that the time has now come when every man who values good character, life, and the security of his family, when every officer of the law, when all in public employment, of whatever kind and description, every lover of his fellow man, should, by one general and united effort, endeavor to stop the further progress of this crime. If no other means will answer, let a general purification take place—let the Judge, the Juryman, the Magistrate, the Constable, guilty of this crime be removed, and others free even from suspicion of it be appointed—the principle of total abstinence be adopted—let it be a mark of disgrace to be seen in a grog shop!—and any man be considered unworthy of either public trust or confidence, who stoops to the meanness of procuring votes, by treating voters. They think that, if practicable, the number of tavern licenses should be reduced; and that every constable, sworn as he is to a faithful discharge of his duty, should be held answerable, if liquors were sold, against the law, within his ward, borough, or township. In pursuing our enquiries, we are well satisfied that with regard this matter there has been very great remissness on the part of those whose duty it is to pry out evil and crime of this kind.—It is almost useless for them to remark, that if every person who sells without license were faithfully and promptly returned, and licenses taken from those who suffer the least disturbance and intoxication to take place, that a great step would be taken towards averting the progress of this crime. Much, it is hoped, can be effected by example; and if a union such as has been mentioned could take place, its effect would be to diminish the county taxes, lessen pauperism, thin the number of criminals, improve the moral condition of the community, and make a vast addition to individual wealth, comfort, and happiness.

The Grand Inquest must also avail themselves to present the horse races that have recently taken place within the vicinity of Pittsburgh as a nusance, and to express their sincere regret that the Magistrates and Police officers, in the immediate neighborhood, failed to do their duty, by arresting all concerned in them. To the collection of boys, apprentices, blackguards, and black legs, of the idle and the debauched of all classes, brought together on occasions of that kind, not an inconsiderable portion of the present calendar of crime may be traced. There is another subject adverted to by the Court in their charge, to which the Grand Inquest give their most cordial assent. They believe that the time has now come when the means of education should be placed within the reach of every child in the community; and it were desirable that the Legislature should make it an indictable offence for a parent to omit to give his children the means of good education—They are the more anxious on the subject as a means of improving the rising generation. It is an indisputable fact that the mind will be employed either for evil or for good, and without the benefit of a good education it will not be employed for the latter. In our happy country, too, where the road to fame is open alike to the son of the poor man and of the rich, there is the greater reason to place within the reach of the children of all, that education which enlightens all—adds to the comforts of all—and by placing all on the same common level in point of intelligence, makes, in the language of our Declaration of Independence, "all men free and equal."

There is also another subject to which the Court have called their attention, that they have taken into their consideration—The subject of the public buildings of the county. An examination of the public Jail is sufficient to satisfy any person, that it is, what previous Grand Jurors have repeatedly declared it to be, a nusance. The collision and confusion that have occurred at the present term, in consequence of three different Courts being unavoidably compelled to occupy the Court House at the present time, is also the source of great inconvenience and regret to all concerned in the discharge of the public business.—Upon this subject the Grand Jury are of opinion, that after disposing of the public property, now offered for sale by the commissioners, they should immediately secure a property in an airy and convenient situation, sufficiently large for the erection of public buildings to accommodate all the Courts held within the city and county; in order that as soon as an appropriation should be received from the General Government, and one from the city of Pittsburgh, to provide for the accommodation of their Courts. In the meantime, the Jail could be erected on the ground purchased; and the balance of the public buildings erected as soon as the finances of the county would justify.

In conclusion, the Grand Inquest cannot refrain from returning their sincere thanks to the learned President of the Court, for the very able and luminous charge delivered by him at the present term, and take the liberty of requesting that he would furnish them a copy for publication in the public papers, in order that the sentiments and opinions it contains, may be brought home to the bosom of every member of the community.

CARLISLE IRON WORKS FOR SALE.

THIS valuable property, late the estate of Michael Ege, deceased, consists of about 8,000 acres of land, including three Farms, on which are a furnace, forge, grist mill, saw mill, and rolling and slitting mill; with all necessary barns, stables, coal houses, out houses, and dwellings for families of the workmen, in the most complete and permanent state. The water power being derived, principally, from a large limestone spring, to which the stream of the Yellow Breeches has been added, is more than adequte to the purposes of the works; and has besides the uncommon advantage of being unaffected by ice or back water. An inexhaustible bank of mountain ore of the best quality for bar iron, is found on the estate, two miles from the furnace, and limestone ore may be had in a situation equally convenient. The wood land and meadow are amply sufficient for the supply of the works, which are advantageously situate as respects a market, being but seventy miles from Baltimore, five from Carlisle, and sixteen from the Susquehanna. This desirable property will remain for private sale till the first of April next, when it will be offered at vendue, if not sooner disposed of. For terms, apply to the subscribers, either at Carlisle or Philadelphia.

FAIRBANK'S PLATFORM SCALES.

THESE scales are constructed upon an improved principle; are fitted up with great care by the manufacturers, and warranted to weigh with accuracy from half a pound to 12,000. Being placed in, and forming part of, the floor, the process of weighing is performed with ease and facility, while the space they occupy may be improved as a passage way or for other purposes.

The construction of these scales is such that they are little liable to derangement of wear, and their perfect operation will be guaranteed for any reasonable length of time.

The usual objection, that a new method of weighing cannot be safely entrusted to unskilful hands, is obviated by the use of the improved BALANCE, concerning which are the following remarks in the Journal of the Franklin Institute, of the state of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of the Mechanic Arts, for June, 1833. (Edited by Thos. P. Jones, M. D., late Superintendent of the Patent Office, at Washington, Professor of Mechanics in the Franklin Institute, &c.

"The Messrs. Fairbanks, some time since, obtained a patent for a Platform Weighing Machine, and this mode of adjuating and graduating the Beam of the Balance, and the weights, was devised by them with a view to its employment with the before mentioned machine. We have had an opportunity of examining one of their balances, and have been much pleased with it: this examination, however, was not necessary to the conviction that it possesses a just claim to the character of a real improvement, the whole arrangement being so simple as to enable any person to perceive that it is well adapted to the purpose contemplated, that of facilitating the business of weighing, and more especially of heavy articles."

The subscriber, as Agent, will receive orders for the above Scales, which will be made in this city to order. They can be seen at his Warehouse, No. 84, Front street.

Nov. 8, 1833. MOSES ATWOOD.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.

THE Subscribers, Trustees of the New Philadelphia Society, at Phillipsburgh, Beaver county, Pennsylvania, offer for sale the following property, to wit:

1	tract of land	containing	330 acres
1	do	do	330
1	do	do	67
1	do	do	7
1	do	do	40
other lots, containing about			6

The above lands lie in one body, fronting about two miles upon the Ohio river—immediately opposite the mouth of Big Beaver creek, and the Beaver Division of the Pennsylvania Canal. The land is rich, and a part of it under a high state of cultivation—its location pleasant and healthy. The improvements upon the same are valuable, including the town of Phillipsburgh, late the residence of Count Leon, and the New Philadelphia Society. The town contains about 40 Dwelling Houses, now in order; some of them brick houses and two stories high. A large and spacious Hotel, a Store house, Church, a number of Shops, for mechanics, Stables, Barns, and other out houses. Also, two large new buildings, lately erected, but not yet finished, one of brick, the other of frame (the latter suitable for a manufactory) a very extensive public garden, and also fruit trees of various kinds. The property has also attached to it the right of a ferry across the Ohio, which is valuable, and becoming more so every day.

The above property is situated in the midst of a wealthy and prosperous country, distant about 28 miles below Pittsburgh, and one mile from Beaver, the seat of justice for Beaver county---and having a view for many miles up and down the Ohio, and of the country to a great distance around.

The subscribers are confident in saying that few situations could be found, presenting greater facilities to the farmer, mechanic, the manufacturer, and others--- a soil rich and productive---the neighborhood abounding in coal---well timbered and watered, and, by means of the Pennsylvania Canal, and steamboat navigation, a cheap and ready conveyance to market, and a communication with other places is ensured.

The property is susceptible of divisions into farms, or for the location of new towns, or for the extension of the present one.

Should it not be sold on or before the first day of January next, it will then be offered at public sale, upon the premises, to the highest and best bidder.

It will be sold in a body, or in parcels, to suit purchasers.

Terms of sale will be reasonable.

Information can be had by enquiring of the subscribers, two of whom live in the neighborhood, and one on the premises.

DOCTOR ROBERT'S

☞WELCH MEDICAMENTUM.☜

FOR the cure of Dyspepsia, Liver Complaints, Jaundice, Cholic, Fever and Ague, Dysentery, Headach, Loss of Appetite, Flatulence, Hypochondria, Hysterics, Dropsical Complaints, and Heartburn, It also prevents all Bilious disorders, and removes habitual Costiveness, Asthma, Strangury, Gravel, Rheumatism, Gout, and Impurities of the Blood.

A person who uses this Medicamentum will not require the use of the lancet, or any means of the healing art. It restores and revives the animal spirits, invigorates the system, removes nervous tremors, obtunds rheumatic and anthritic pains, and prevents their return. It cleanses the stomach of all morbid humors, which cause indigestion, acidities, headach, and lowness of spirits; cures all bilious disorders, and all cholics of the stomach and bowels, almost immediately; inspires cheerfulness; gives comfort to the dropsical; takes away palpitation of the heart; gives circulation to the blood; restores bloom to the sallow or sickly cheek, and plumpness to the meagre habit; purges without pain, and banishes all cause of fever of every kind. It acts on the stomach, that great reservoir of the human system, a diseased state of which causes all diseases. No alteration in the usual habits of life is required, but the abstaining from distilled ardent spirits.

CERTIFICATE,

From Rev. Derick Lansing, D. D., Pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church in Utica.

UTICA, Jan. 6, 1830.

To Dr. Hitchcock.—Dear Sir: I have always been one of the number of those who have placed little confidence in nostrums or specifics, and for this reason, although I saw your advertisement of the Welch Medicamentum, I could not bring my mind to consent to use it. My sufferings, from indigestion, during the past summer, were so severe, as materially to affect my comfort, and my capacity for usefulness. I have reason to thank you, sir, that, on hearing of the state of my health, you kindly sent me your Medicamentum. I have taken it faithfully, and with entire success. I have not been visited with one of those turns of distress, which before were weekly periodical, since I began to take your valuable medicine. Could I receive the same relief which I have hitherto experienced, on condition of taking it for life, I should cheerfully comply with such condition. Your's, very truly, D. C. LANSING.

ANTI-DYSPEPTIC ELIXER.

ONE of the most agreeable and efficacious Medicines ever discovered for the permanent cure of those chronic states of derangement of the stomach, constituting that miserable disease called Dyspepsia.

The basis of this Elixer s vegetables, and perfectly innocent in its operation; it destroys that sour state of the stomach, the instant it is taken, and stops the morbid secretion, by giving strength to the muscular fibre of that important organ, by which means the peristaltic motion of the intestines is increased, and the costiveness obviated; a new action is given to the system, which puts an end to a train of distressing nervous sensations.

Another form of the disease in which the Elixer is admirably calculated to relieve, is the decline of fever, where the stomach will not bear the ordinary strengthening medicines indicated in such cases, it has the surprising effect of giving vigor, and restoring the natural secretions of the body, without increasing the febrile state. Not the least danger is to be apprehended from exposure to cold, while under the use of this medicine, nor will it interrupt necessary employment of the patient a single hour.

☞A number of cases of cures performed by the Anti-Dyspeptic Elixer in the vicinity of Pittsburgh can be given.

GEO. W. CARPENTER'S

COMPOUND SYRUP OF LIVERWORT,

A SAFE and Valuable Medicine for Coughs, Spitting of Blood, Consumption, and Liver Complaints.

Most of the medicines made use of for the above diseases are of a stimulating nature, composed generally of Resins and Balsams, in alcoholic solutions, which, although sometimes giving temporary relief, in almost every instance where they are freely used, aggravate the disease, and reduce the strength of the patient.

This article possesses superior advantages over these preparations, its action being of a tonic, invigorating and strengthening nature, thus overcoming the disease by promoting expectoration, and gradually increasing the strength of the patient, and thus, without being attended with any unpleasant effects: it also agrees with the stomach, in a cases, and is a pleasant medicine to take.

TYPE FOUNDRY.

HAVING purchased of Mr. Richard Ronaldson, his long established and very extensive Type Foundry, the subscribers have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of continuing said business, and for the convenience of their friends and patrons, have removed their establishment to a more central part of the city. As it is their intention to keep on hand a good assortment of the best type, and to make such additions and improvements as the taste of the trade and the wants of the country require, they flatter themselves that this establishment will merit a large share of patronage. They have now several founts on hand, which can be furnished at a few hours' notice, and are prepared to make founts of all weights and sizes, from Pearl to 22 lines Pica, including a variety of Ornamental Letter. Their assortment of Cuts, Dashes, Brass Rule, and other Ornaments, will be found to be very extensive, of which specimens will be forwarded to Printers as soon as they can be prepared.

Printing Presses of every description, Printing Ink of the most approved qualities, Composing Sticks, Brass and Common Galleys, Chases, Imposing Stones, Cases, Paper and Press Boards, Standing Presses, Furniture, together with a complete assortment of all articles used in a Printing Office, will be kept constantly on hand.

Small founts, suitable for Book Binders, in great variety, may be had when called for.

Orders from all parts in the Union will be promptly and most carefully attended to, and particularly in supplying sorts for all founts furnished by their predecessors, Binny & Ronaldson, and Richard Ronaldson.

PATENT PLANING MACHINE.—The right to use this valuable machine, invented and patented by William Woodworth, and known as Woodworth's Patent Planing Machine, may be obtained on application to the subscriber for the counties of Allegheny, Butler, Beaver, Washington, Green, Fayette, Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Jefferson, Clearfield, M'Kean, Warren, Venango, Mercer, Crawford, and Erie, in the State of Pennsylvania. That part of Maryland lying west of the Blue Ridge; all that part of Virginia lying west of the Blue Ridge, except the county of Ohio. The whole of the state of Ohio except the counties of Hamilton, Butler, and Montgomery. The whole of the state of Kentucky, except the counties of Jefferson, Boone, Oldham, Gallatin, and Campbell. The whole of Indiana, except the counties of Floyd, Clark, Jefferson, Dearborn, and Switzerland. The whole of the state of Illinois, and the territory of Michigan. Rights to use the machine in that part of the United States, named above, will be sold by the single county or in larger districts. As it is presumed that no one will purchase without seeing the machine at work, a description of it is deemed unnecessary. Should any person, however, wish to purchase, and find it inconvenient to visit the places where it is in operation, a machine will be furnished, warranted to plane, tongue and groove, and bring to an exact width and thickness, a white pine board of 12 feet long, and of any width from 1 to 14 inches, in one minute and ten seconds, or an oak board of the same dimensions in 2 minutes and 10 seconds. Machines may be seen at work in the cities of New Orleans, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston, and others at the south and east, at Wheeling, Virginia, and at the saw mill of Messrs. Irwin & Herron, in this city.

Persons desiring to purchase will have the certificates of scientific and practical men who have seen it at work, in the different places in which it has been put up, forwarded to them. They give their opinion as to the great value of the invention, state the time they have seen boards dressed by this machine, and describe the quality of the work as compared with that performed by hand labor.
